Liberace

as we see it

The recent statement of Pope Pius XII, in which he described television as a means of bringing people closer together and helping remove obstacles to a peaceful world, was made to an assembly of Europe's radio and television broadcasters.

These broadcasters already have established a Eurovision network, linking the television facilities of free European Nations. Major events in Rome, London, Paris and other capitals are telecast simultaneously throughout Western Europe. Technical differences in equipment, as well as language barriers, have been overcome. It can truly be said that in Europe, at least, an effort is being made to use television as a weapon for peace and understanding.

Whether the hopes of Pope Pius for television can be realized depends largely, we believe, upon American participation. As the undisputed leader of the Western world, America must understand her allies, just as our allies must understand us. What better means is there of achieving mutual understanding than through the medium of television?

We already have the technical knowledge to relay programs across the Atlantic. The expense of developing workable facilities would be great, but we have spent vast sums before—and on projects less hopeful of providing a basis for peace. What we spend in one year merely on propaganda in Europe would go far toward constructing a permanent television link that would permit an interchange of programs.

It is time to stop thinking of a transoceanic relay system as something for the world of tomorrow. Today's world needs it.

NEW YORK Bob Stahl reports:

Wide Wide World cameras will skip around the country Sunday, Dec. 18, to show how we prepare for Christmas Day celebrations. Producers scratching heads over New Year's Day (Sunday), though. With the holiday being celebrated on Jan. 2, it seems there'll be nothing special going on when the show is telecast.

* * *

Entire TV industry engaged in behind-the-scenes worry about the poor reception, from both viewers and critics, of many of the new season's shows. Networks, sponsors and talent agencies fear that, on the basis of early rating returns, few of the new shows will last out this season.

* * *

More viewers watched the MARY MARTIN-NOEL COWARD show on Ford Star Jubilee recently than the competing JIMMY DURANTE show, according to Trendex. But both GEORGE GOBEL and Your Hit Parade topped it in the final hour. . . . And The Perry Como Show is beating the DORSEY BROTHERS' Stage Show consistently.

* * *

Joe and Mabel series now scheduled to debut Jan. 3. This poses a problem for CBS, because Meet Millie, which retained its Tuesday night time period when Joe was postponed this fall, has been climbing higher and higher in the ratings.

* * *

* * *

After a five-month layoff to film a movie version of Foreign Intrigue, producer SHELDON REYNOLDS is launching production of a new Intrigue telefilm series. . . . TOM EWELL, of "Seven Year Itch" fame, stars on G.E. Theater Sunday, Dec. 4, in a comedy-mystery titled "The Case of Mr. Pelham."

* * *

Some Hollywood telefilm producers are worried that Hollywood actors are becoming too familiar to TV audiences. Ziv-TV, for one, is tapping the pool of East Coast acting talent for some of its shows. . . . ARNOLD STANG, added to The Goldbergs cast, recreating the role of Seymour, Jake's shipping clerk, that he played originally on radio.

* * *

Robert Montgomery Presents dickering for ESTHER WILLIAMS to play a straight dramatic role in an upcoming production. So far, MONTGOMERY hasn't found a play suitable for the actress. . . . Universal-International releasing to TV its "Secret Agent X-9," a Saturday matinee-type cliff-hanger serial.

Lion Of The Lot

Liberace plays a scene with Dorothy Malone, one of his two lovely leading ladies

They Laughed When Liberace Was Signed For Movie, But—

in his new feature film, 'Sincerely Yours.'

Asking somebody at the Warner Brothers Studios in Hollywood what he thinks of Liberace is like asking a Southerner what political party he belongs to. Nine times out of 10, the answer is the same.

"Frankly," comes the typical Warners reply, "I was prepared not to like him. But a nicer guy you never met. He sure surprised us."

Liberace, who is a normally perceptive citizen, went into the making of "Sincerely Yours," his first starring film, fully aware that he was no Gable coming home to Metro. As always, TV's most popular curly-haired pianist retained his awareness of the value of public relations.

Some cynics at Warners may have laughed the first time Liberace sat down to play. But by the time he got through the two-month shooting schedule, he was the lion of the lot. The director liked him because he took direction, tried hard to learn, admitted he was no actor and never stopped working. The cast liked him because he so obviously thought they were a lot more important than he was. The crew liked him because he knew how to say "Good morning" as though he meant it and was forever asking questions.

Liberace put the clincher on these favorable verdicts by throwing the biggest on-the-set party ever seen at the end of a Hollywood picture. Not only were the cast and crew invited, but a general invitation blanketed the entire Warners lot. Customarily, a star will show up at such a party just long enough to be glimpsed, and then duck for home. Liberace was the first to arrive and the last to leave. Cast members were given individual gifts. The men in the crew received custom-made cocktail trays; the women, imported leather jewel boxes. The entire shindig set the pianist back approximately $5000.

During the making of the picture, Liberace approached the love scenes with all the easy confidence of a Yale senior at large. To Dorothy Malone fell the honor of sharing Liberace's first screen kiss; and director Gordon Douglas, aware of Lee's inexperience in such kleig-lighted matters, went to some pains to show the pianist exactly how it should be done.

"Gordie," said Liberace, when it began to appear that Douglas was losing himself in the part, "that's long enough. How about letting me try that for a change?"

With Joanne Dru, the pianist was even more impetuous. He was supposed to charge up a steel staircase outside Carnegie Hall and sweep the girl into his arms on the landing. On the first take he tripped halfway up and fell on his face. On the second take he made it. Reaching the landing, he grabbed Miss Dru in what can only be described as a bear hug.

Miss Dru had been suffering from a crick in her neck. When Liberace pulled her to him, sparing no horses, the neck suddenly cracked with a sound like a pistol shot. "Gee, thanks a lot," she said breathlessly. "I was going to a doctor tonight, but you just saved me the trouble."

Liberace has been at some pains to explain that "Sincerely Yours" is in no sense his own biography. It tells the story of a young concert pianist whose ambition in life is to play at Carnegie Hall. On the eve of achieving his goal, he becomes deaf. He loses what he supposes to be the love of his life, a wealthy socialite

*With Joanne Dru.

(Miss Malone). He has an operation, plays Carnegie Hall and discovers, just in time for the picture's ending, that it's his secretary (Miss Dru) he really loved all the time. The secretary, of course, has loved him all the time and even a casual moviegoer could tell who was going to win.

Liberace plays a total of 31 numbers in the picture and wears almost as many different costumes, all highly stylized in the Liberace manner. He also dances ("surprisingly well," according to a crew member) and does considerable serious emoting. "After all," explains Douglas, "being deaf is hardly a laughing matter. We've toned down the famous smile and given him a lot of good, down-to-earth dialog."

"This guy," says the film editor, "is going to surprise a lot of people who didn't think he could do anything except grin and play the piano."

Liberace, who still smiles occasionally on his way to the bank, owns a piece of the picture and is making a point of selling it himself. Starting with the Oct. 28 premiere in Chicago, he launched a publicity tour which will include appearances at a dozen openings from Boston to Hollywood in less than a month. He also managed to sandwich in a guest spot on The Ed Sullivan Show, to play and sing his own original title song, "Sincerely Yours."

Even before the tour started, Liberace was beating the bushes for a new script. His contract with Warners calls for one picture a year for five years, and he is not one to let somebody else pick his tunes for him.

"They're buying my personality," he says matter-of-factly, "so it seems sensible to have that personality stamped on the story, the music, the costumes and everything else. If that's what they're buying, that's what I'm going to give them."

The personality, in two years' time, has matured a good deal and has acquired an easy poise that has become the delight of the Hollywood press corps. His once dead-pan answers to purposely silly questions are now tinged with a dry humor, with the result that newsmen who used to laugh at him are now laughing with him.

Liberace recently tossed himself a shindig at his somewhat gaudily subdued home in the San Fernando Valley, the two-fold purpose of which was to bare his interior decorating ideas to the press and introduce his new four-volume "Liberace Course of Piano Study." One of his decorating ideas was a heavy gold necktie richly embossed with a detailed design.

"Where," he was asked bluntly, "did you get that crazy tie?"

Liberace grinned amiably. "Heck," he said, shrugging, "all you've got to have is a little guts."

Not long ago the first issue of a new magazine was published, supposedly a tongue-in-cheek answer to the many smear-type magazines now on the stands. Its cover line said that Liberace is bald and that his make-up man actually is a barber.

"You should have heard the make-up man," Liberace chuckled. "He was really screaming. Said they couldn't call him a barber. He'd sue. I told him he should hear some of the things people call ME!"—Dan Jenkins

Surprise: Gale Gordon registers shock as he sees Eve Arden with two new cast members. They are William Ching, left, and Bob Sweeney.

Our New Miss Brooks

Now The Man Is Running After HER

Our Miss Brooks is no longer chasing Mr. Boynton.

As a matter of fact, she's the one now on the run—and that's not the only difference in the show that started its new season five weeks ago.

Madison High School is gone. Mr. Boynton, the boy friend, is gone. Walter Denton, the pupil, is gone. Mrs. Davis, the absent-minded landlady, is going. Only Mr. Conklin, the terrible-tempered principal, remains.

As the dust settles, an entire new cast and a new school emerge from the ruins—and in the opinion of producer Larry Berns, it's high time.

The cast and the locale had been the same since 1948, when Berns put the show on radio. In the years that followed, as Connie Brooks, B.A., Eve Arden became the best-known—and the best paid—schoolteacher in the United States. The television version (dating from Oct. 3, 1952) made the entire group—Gale Gordon as Conklin, Dick Crenna as Denton, Jane Morgan as Mrs. Davis and Robert Rockwell as Boynton—familiar figures in most American homes.

The change came abruptly. In one show, Madison High was demolished to make room for a freeway and Connie Brooks turned up on the faculty of a private elementary school in the San Fernando Valley, with a new boy friend, a new boss, new pupils—but the same old principal, the highly volatile Osgood Conklin.

There is now Clint Albright (William Ching), athletic director at Mrs. Nestor's Private School, who does the chasing; Oliver Munsey (Bob Sweeney, formerly on My Favorite Husband), who is Mrs. Nestor's eccentric brother, and impish 10-year-old Benny Romero (Ricky Vera), the chief pupil. Nana Bryant started out playing Mrs. Nestor, the owner of the school, but retired in favor of Isabel Randolph, who plays her sister-in-law, also a Mrs. Nestor.

This, says Berns, is only the beginning. After 298 radio and 127 TV episodes of Our Miss Brooks, counting repeats, changes in format and characters were deemed overdue. An earlier time slot on CBS this fall (8:30 P.M. ET Fridays; formerly 9:30) provided a perfect excuse for lowering the age of Miss Brooks' pupils from 14-18 to 6-14. "A lot of grade-school kids will, we hope, be watching now," says Berns, "so we gave Connie an elementary school.

"There will be other new faces, permanent or temporary. Albright, for example. If the athletic director doesn't work out as a love interest, he could be replaced with a new history teacher. And the location of the school lets us work in the children of famous stars, if we want to, as Miss Brooks' pupils. And so on. But," he cautions, "a hit show is like a house, with the star as the roof and the principals as supporting pillars. We're not about to tear the house down."

On radio, the old house is still standing on Sunday nights, with the familiar Madison High cast still up to its familiar tricks—and Boynton will get Brooks in the Warner Bros. "Our Miss Brooks" feature film, due for release next June. In time, says Berns, the TV changes also will occur on the radio program.

Old favorites may reappear from time to time if Miss Arden has anything to say about it (and she does). "Naturally," she says, "I'm quite sentimental about all of them and I hope they can be worked into the new format. The new cast members are interesting characters, though, and will make for plot situations that I am going to enjoy. I adore children, and I'm especially delighted with the prospects of sharing the spotlight with a group of child actors."

Lost him: Miss Brooks never did catch Mr. Boynton (Robert Rockwell) on TV.

She Puts New York To Sleep

New Yorkers watching WRCA-TV at 1 A.M. these days are being lulled to sleep by a 24-year-old model named Nancy Berg, who climbs into bed, stretches, yawns and finally snoozes. Her sponsor—logically enough—is a mattress company; her co-stars, some fence-hopping sheep.

Borelli

Glendora

New England Dateline

A student of child behavior and development, Glendora Folsom admits being astounded by the fact that the boys continue to trounce the girls in the quiz portion of the S.S. Glendora (Saturday, 8:30 A.M. on Ch. 4).

Pot and Skillet hostess Fran Evans is equally adept with a tourniquet and cold compress. Fran is a registered nurse as well as a homemaking expert. Pot and Skillet is seen weekdays at 4 P.M. on Ch. 9.

Pianist Al Borelli's Intermezzo returns to Ch. 10 following the football game Saturday. Borelli has overhauled his format and will include a talented singer on each of his telecasts. He'll also revert to white tie and tails.

Beginning Monday, Nov. 28, Ch. 9 will present Santa Claus at 4:45 P.M. each weekday. Santa will tell a story and read mail on the air each day.

Ch. 7 will present a new series of first-run movies at 11 P.M., Nov. 19, and every Saturday thereafter. On tap for the 19th, "Cry Danger," starring William Powell and Rhonda Fleming.

Temple Israel returns to Ch. 7 at 11 A.M. Sunday, Nov. 20. The services will be conducted by Rabbi Roland Gittlesohn and will be seen every third Sunday.

Tip to office girls with TV aspirations: Kitty Broman of Ch. 22's At Home with Kitty (weekdays at 2 P.M.) was formerly an administrative secretary at that station.

Ch. 9 has petitioned the FCC for a power increase. Tentative target date for the increase is Dec. 1.

4:00 4 6 10 22 30 WIDE WIDE WORLD — Tour

It's another television first for Wide Wide World as the country-wide NBC network presents a live TV pickup from Cuba. This is the first time a telecast has ever been beamed from a foreign country to the U.S. across a body of water. The distance between Havana, where the cameras are located, and Miami Beach, Fla., where the video cable starts, is roughly 250 miles, too far for a TV signal to reach. Between the two points, therefore, an airplane will fly a light figure eight at a height of 11,000 feet to relay the picture. In Havana the cameras will focus on a group of Cuban children in native costumes and performing native songs and dances. Another camera will present a panoramic view of the city.

The Havana pickup climaxes another 90-minute video tour of North America, with Dave Garroway as the guide and "A Sunday with Youth" as the theme. Bennington, Vt.: a christening. Oakland, Cal.: Fairyland Park. Toronto, Canada: Spring Lamb Ballet on ice. Massillon, O.: high school football rally. Ojai, Cal.: the Gymkhana, ancient Greek contest featuring feats of speed and skill on horseback. Madison, Wis.: 4-H Fair, with farm children. Havana pick up. Brigham, Ut.: Navajo boarding school, with Navajo children performing the Squaw Dance. Detroit: rock 'n' roll jam session with singer Jaye P. Morgan and Hugo Winterhalter's orchestra. San Fernando, Cal.: hot-rod race. Miami Beach, Fla.: water skiing. Dayton, O.: a simulated alert sends four young pilots streaking to their jet planes and aloft from Wright-Patterson Field.

John Wayne

COLOR This is the second annual variety show produced in cooperation with the Overseas Press Club. Tonight's theme, "Freedom of the Press," will be set in the opening remarks by screen star John Wayne. Actor William Holden emcees the proceedings and Milton Berle, Greer Garson and Peggy Lee are among the entertainers. Miss Garson is co-emcee.

Janet Blair sings "Funnies," by Irving Berlin. To go with it, Tony Charmoli has fashioned a ballet on a "Li'l Abner" theme.

Robert Frost, famed New England poet, talks on "The Right to Know."

Irving Berlin has also contributed a new song, titled "Free."

Marguerite Higgins, international correspondent, is portrayed in a playlet based on an incident in her career. The scene is a dugout near the front lines in the Korean War. A soldier brings in his seriously wounded buddy and tries desperately to keep him alive until the medics arrive. Script is by Donald Bevan. Patricia Benoit is Marguerite Higgins. Darren McGavin plays Ed.

John Steinbeck's contribution is a eulogy of magazine photographer Robert Capa. Capa was killed last year in Indo-China.

"Davy Crockett and the Keelboat Race"

Davy Crockett

Mike Fink

Fess Parker as DAVY CROCKETT • Buddy Ebsen as GEORGE RUSSEL
Jeff York as MIKE FINK

Like Davy Crockett, Mike Fink was a genuine frontier hero whose career gave rise to a good many legends. He referred to himself, it's said, as "King of the River, the original ring-tailed roarer from the thunder and lightning country, a real snorter and head-buster who can out-run, out-jump, out-swim, out-sing, out-dance, out-shoot, out-eat, out-drink, out-talk, out-cuss, and out-fight ever'body on the Ohio and Mississippi put together." Naturally when Mike and Davy meet there's bound to be fireworks.

Walt Disney shows Mike and Davy meeting up on the Ohio River where keelboatman Mike tells Davy and his pal George Russel it will cost them $1000 for a trip to New Orleans. This leads to a first-class race, Davy Crockett vs. Mike Fink, down the Ohio and Mississippi Rivers from Maysville, Ky., to New Orleans, with Davy's wits matched against Mike's skulduggery all the way.

Shot on location, the film boasts a new song, "King of the River," by the men who wrote "The Ballad of Davy Crockett."

Who Needs The Social Register ?

Jane Wyatt Gave It Up To Become An Actress, Birdwatcher And Housewife

Last June, in Hollywood, the producers of Father Knows Best stopped feeling perky about overcoming one crisis (until letter-writing viewers ruled otherwise, the program seemed doomed) to confront another crisis.

Because the Screen Actors Guild had voted a TV strike, the producers felt it best to get several extra episodes completed as soon continued

Jane Wyatt: Free Tickets Led To Her Acting Career

as possible. But there was a hitch.

Robert Young's wife in the show, Jane Wyatt, had gone merrily off on vacation and was in a tent somewhere on the tumbled slopes of Mount Shasta, in northern California.

She had no address and no telephone number and was some 18 miles from the nearest fire tower. In an industry where swimming in a pool with an inadequate filter is considered "roughing it," this was befuddling behavior. But TV producers are equal to any occasion.

Next day, a Los Angeles investment broker named Edgar Ward was making his way down sprawling Mt. Shasta when a forest ranger appeared and asked him to identify himself, which Ward did. "Man!" said the ranger, "tell your wife to get down to the road and call Hollywood. They're driving us crazy!"

Thus it was that Father Knows Best returned to the air this season with a new lease on life, a new time on a new network (NBC), a new sponsor, and plenty of extra episodes—in all of which Jane Wyatt Ward can be seen bearing up remarkably, despite the loss of her vacation.

Her indestructible constitution is only one of the things which make TV's Mrs. Jim Anderson a remarkable creature. For example, consider what she was doing when the producers caught up with her.

Miss Wyatt was birdwatching. Cooking, camping, Den-mothering (for Cub Scouts) and identifying stray fowl through field glasses, it seems, are four of her favorite pursuits, a tame collection of hobbies which may surprise many people, including editors of New York's Social Register.

The story goes that Miss Wyatt was dropped from Society when she went on the stage as Rose Hobart's understudy in "Trade Winds" about 25 years ago. As a black sheep, however, the daughter of the late Christopher Billop Wyatt, an investment partner, turned out to be a dismal failure.

She is the first to admit it. "I am," she says, "without glamor. I revere Shakespeare, believe in religion and take strong stands on things like hot school lunches. I am an actress because I decided as a girl to become one, not because I had to become famous in order to support a widowed mother. I withstand every temptation to believe my own publicity. I prefer New York to Hollywood, the stage to the films, and 'live' to filmed TV. I consider Mrs. Anderson a wonderful character, and I'm gratified that I was hired for the part on the basis of the necessary acting background, plus the private qualifications."

Among the latter are her experiences in the roles of wife and mother. Jane has known Ward since she was 16 and an undergraduate at the fashionable Miss Chapin's School in New York. Married since 1935—the year she made her first movie, "Lost Horizon"—they live quietly in an old part of Hollywood better known for its comfort than its swank. Their two sons are Christopher, 18, and Michael, 12. Before Jane packed Christopher off to Massachusetts Institute of Technology this fall as a freshman, his interest in scouting and baseball turned her into a Den Mother with definite opinions about The Series; but with Michael, the going looks a little easier.

He's interested in art and music.

Miss Wyatt traces her own interest in the theater to her mother's literary bent. Second-oldest of four children, she settled on Maude Adams as her idol during working-press visits to the theater with her playwright mother, who wrote—and still writes—dramatic criticism for The Catholic World. Following up her decision with two years at Barnard College and six months at the Berkshire Playhouse, her ambition, she reports, wavered only once—when she understudied in "Trade Winds" and prayed every night nothing would happen to the leading lady. (It didn't.)

A couple of years later, after opening and closing in enough flop plays to turn any tyro into a veteran, she replaced Margaret Sullavan in "Dinner at Eight" on Broadway, and went on to establish herself, via such off-beat films as "Gentleman's Agreement" and "Boomerang," as a serious artist.

Miss Wyatt is inclined to regard her TV and real-life mother roles as equally adventurous. She confesses, however, that having a TV family hasn't contributed noticeably to the peace of her own.

"I happen to believe that an actor becomes the character he plays if he's any good at all, and woe to my own family if the script calls for a quarrel. I pick it up at home right where we left off at the studio."

But she can be objective about her profession. Others associated with Father Knows Best were plunged into despondency when the series, after drawing rave notices and lamentations—the latter because it was on too late for children on Sunday nights—abruptly was dropped by its sponsor. Amid the ensuing uncertainty, Miss Wyatt's behavior was singularly level-headed. Phoning the advertising agency involved, she identified herself and asked whether, in their opinion, the show would find another sponsor.

"We're sure of it," was the answer.

"From that point on," she says, in a comment as characteristic of Jane Wyatt as her blue eyes or her auburn hair, "I just went about my business."

Pigeons Are Your Best Entertainment

Members Of The TV Audience Also Vote For Angels And 'Miss Salami'

There's an old chestnut that goes, "Everyone has two businesses—his own and show business." More recently, that's been amended to "—his own and TV." The butcher, the baker, the pogo-stick maker all have emphatic morning-after opinions on any given show. And thousands of them volunteer ideas for programs.

People who wouldn't dream of writing their Congressmen, or even their mothers, seem to feel duty bound to write the networks. Some of their proposals are strange and wonderful.

A lady in Hackensack, for instance, suggested a "Bring 'Em In Alive" show. To get on, you nominate your worst enemy. Then, when a gong rings, you and your foe hurl insults.

In one week, a single show, You Asked For It, received the following programming requests:

"Please show us an angel. I hear they can be picked up by radar."

"How about two passenger trains colliding at 90 miles an hour?"

"I want to see a person walking on water with no gimmicks on his feet."

And one man asked the show to furnish "the recipe a cannibal would use in preparing a person for eating."

An Indian tried to convince one network to produce a "how-to-do-it" show. He was offering—for a fee—the perfect title: "How!"

The public relations director of a sunbathing association suggested to ABC-TV that the association's national convention should be televised.

One woman has written all the networks about televising her conversations with Mark Twain. "It's not a hoax," she said. "We discuss cosmic laws." A man who claimed frequent chats with the late Sigmund Freud said he could produce the Father of Psychoanalysis for a TV show, but only on camera. "We're not giving anything away free," he explained.

There was also a woman who conversed with pigeons in the park. "Pigeons would make an interesting show," she asserted. "After all, they keep peeking into people's windows."

A recent parent, male, suggested: "Put cameras in maternity hospitals and interview prospective fathers."

A bachelor, it would seem, thought this one up. "What this country needs," he wrote, "is a good $10 Matrimonial Bureau. The Government could set up a Department of Friendship and a National Matrimonial Week to inspire an epidemic of romance. It could be sponsored on TV."

Person to Person had to decline a request to visit Lassie at home. "Suppose," the producers speculated, "Rin Tin Tin demanded equal time."

One gentleman suggested a humorous series about a family named Taylor—"with an unusual gimmick: all the Taylors have tails." Another urged a program in which the screen would be entirely blank except for a large electric light bulb. His title: "TV To Read By."

Volunteer idea men are not all amateurs. One morning's phone calls to the Steve Allen office netted offers from press agents to present, in costume, the following young ladies on Tonight: Miss Potato Chip, Miss Cherry Wine, Miss Kosher Salami, Miss Tulip and Miss Crab Apple.

One avid viewer believed her life would be complete if, to Today, Home and Tonight, NBC would add shows tagged "Noon" and "Twilight."

An ingenious lad suggested, "Tell all your viewers to send me 10 cents." He added, "Everyone will benefit from this." He didn't say how.

Some suggestions are accompanied by threats. Walt Disney picked up his phone to hear a small voice announce, "I'm calling for the Clearview Grammar School and I've been chosen to tell you that you better get Davy Crockett out of the Alamo—or else!"

Shortly afterward, the shaken Disney resurrected Davy for two more TV shows!

Classroom Matinees

TV DRAMA SHOWS DOUBLE AS TEACHING AIDS

Things certainly have changed since most of today's adults closed the doors on their high school education.

Take Shakespeare, for example. No listening to a weary teacher reading long passages from the Bard's works for present-day students. They thrill to the filmed TV versions of Maurice Evans' "Macbeth" and "Richard II," as produced originally for Hall of Fame.

In actual classroom work, educational TV continues to be something largely confined to a few university-owned stations around the country. But a number of schools and colleges are putting television to educational use by showing students certain regular programs, the same ones seen on home receivers. Besides Evans' two Shakespearean shows, several Studio One dramas and even an episode or two of Danger are an integral part of many lucky students' course of study.

These shows were produced solely for commercial TV, of course. But educators find them useful. According to Dr. Harrison Thomas, assistant superintendent in charge of high schools are Studio One dramas on social or political problems. These include "Incident at Carson's Corners" (school children put parents on trial for the death-through-neglect of a classmate), "Twelve Angry Men" (a jury at odds over a murder case) and "Almanac of Liberty" (based on Justice William O. Douglas' book).

NBC has approved many requests for a Robert Montgomery Presents show about geriatrics (a study of the aged) titled, "Such a Busy Day Tomorrow," for its Elder Wise Men series and for TV Playhouse scripts. The latter must be cleared with its authors, who retain all rights.

One of the more ambitious TV-to-school alliances is provided by the sponsors of You Are There, who each week publish a four-page brochure entitled "Television Teaching Aid," to assist teachers in following up their students' viewing of the show. These sponsors count on the children watching the show on the air. Next fall, however, it is planned to turn the show over to an educational film distributor, which will send many more than the present three prints provided schools around the country.

While networks and sponsors are happy to cooperate with organizations, they cannot honor the many requests that come in from individuals.

NBC, for example, was literally swamped with applications for kinescopes of Mary Martin's "Peter Pan" spectacular. Investigation disclosed that most of the requests came from private citizens. Seems a lot of people who failed to tune in had read the rave reviews, realized they'd missed something special—and wanted another crack at it!

for New York City: "We're using more and more TV shows and find them a very fine way to teach. . . ."

Schools, colleges, church and civic organizations desiring information on any NBC program should contact Jack Talley, NBC's Special Film Service coordinator, 30 Rockefeller Plaza. For CBS' The Search and You Are There, contact Godfrey Elliott, Young America Films, 18 East 41 St. For See It Now, write to Al Rosenberg, McGraw-Hill Publications, 330 West 42 St., or Fund for the Republic, 1 East 54 St. For all other CBS programs, write CBS Business Affairs Department, 485 Madison Ave. (All New York City.)

'Ten-shun! Phil Silvers clutches cards as he salutes Paul Ford. WAC is Louise Golden.

The Phil Silvers Show

Situation comedy apparently is the toughest field for a new show to crack these days, but veteran stage and screen comic Phil Silvers has managed to carve a heartening wedge for himself with the early episodes of CBS' new Phil Silvers Show (formerly, You'll Never Get Rich). He does it the hard way, too, for the most difficult kind of comedy is the unbelievable farce which becomes believable in the telling—or the acting.

Given almost any other time spot except that opposite the last half-hour of the Berle-Raye-Hope powerhouse on NBC Tuesday nights, the Silvers show would already be well on its way to the ranks of the Top 10. As it is, the show can be expected to chip away methodically at the opposition, with word-of-mouth working in its favor.

Silvers, one of the few true masters of comedy timing, plays the custom-tailored role of Master Sergeant Ernie Bilko, a Regular Army character to whom justifiable petty larceny is meat and drink; but who occasionally, if with great difficulty, can be brought to terms with his conscience. This latter piece of moral equipment lies deeply buried and is dredged up just often enough to keep Bilko wonderfully human.

Every veteran of every branch of the service will recognize Bilko and his cohorts instantly. He is the kind of guy, paradoxically enough, who can create more goodwill for the Army than a dozen documentaries based on heroism.

Robin Hood

Robin Hood, as produced in England, could very well be the answer to a mother's prayer about Westerns, as produced in Hollywood. Appealing to both children and adults, this CBS show has stacked up in its early weeks as a solid piece of well-produced, well-acted entertainment which comes as a welcome relief from the "they went thataway" school of "children's hour" programming.

The costumes and backgrounds are intriguing to an audience sated with sagebrush, and the producers have wisely added an excellent cast, a faithful adherence to the Robin Hood spirit and a welcome touch of humor.

Richard Greene is fine in the title role. Alan Wheatley (Sheriff of Nottingham) and Alexander Gauge (Friar Tuck) are also outstanding.—D.J.

FINE TUNING

By Ollie Crawford

New York's Count Sheep program expected to catch on. It's the first show designed to put you to sleep since the late late movie.

It has a cast of five—Nancy Berg and a four-poster.

It's a sequel to Howdy Doody, called "Nighty-night." Nancy is the one who counts sheep, and it won't be long until sheep go to sleep by counting Nancys. She's the Miss Frances of the late night set. It's called Count Sheep, but Nancy is more of a lamb. It's another case of big town people liking a small Berg.

This takes television all the way from Milton Berle to a retiring personality.

It's a five minute show and the format is simple—Nancy goes to bed. The experts figure that TV fans enjoy the bed, after all the bunk. Nancy just begins to nod and drop off to sleep, so the show amounts to nodding. But it doesn't cost much—even TV is cheaper by the dozing.

This is the first television show that can advertise: 40 winks, count them—40.

The bedtime show is designed to give the network boys a new slogan: NBC blankets the nation.

Fred Allen Yearns For Como Show; Dorsey Brothers' Mom Shuns TV

NEW YORK . . . Fred Allen says he hopes he gets summoned frequently to appear on The Perry Como Show. "Do you like the way Perry works?" I asked. "Yes," said Fred, "and besides, his studio is right across from my apartment. It's about 50 steps to work" . . . "Mom" Dorsey, 81, takes a bow during each pre-show warm-up of Stage Show, starring sons Tommy and Jimmy, but doesn't plan to appear before the program's cameras. "At my age," she explains, "I can't wear tights."

■ Desi Arnaz tried to conduct an orchestra, and afterward Lucille Ball kidded him. "Why don't you get rid of your baton?" she asked. "Not a man in the orchestra pays the least bit of attention to you—and besides, it must make you tired!"

■ There was a terrific tizzy in one ad agency after the Mary Martin-Noel Coward spectacular for Ford. Seems that one of the Coward songs contained the word "Frigidaire"—and that product is manufactured by Ford's great rival, General Motors! . . . Hal March, of The $64,000 Question, is eager to prove he can really act. So his agent has obtained one-shot TV rights to "The Bachelor and the Bobby-Soxer," which Cary Grant did as a movie with Shirley Temple. March is seeking as his co-star 17-year-old stage actress Susan Strasberg, who played Juliet on TV last season.

■ Phil Silvers tells me that if TV audiences tire of his show's Army locale, the program can be switched quickly to civilian subjects. "We've seen some other shows decline because of too rigid a format," says Phil, "and we've deliberately kept our show flexible" . . . "I always thought you were a much older man," a woman fan from Buffalo told Herb Shriner recently. "I am," grinned Herb.

Lucille Ball, ribber.

■ Hopalong Cassidy (Bill Boyd) claims that 60 percent of his audience is adult. "The trouble," he says, "is getting the adults to admit it." Sometimes, when a father says, "My kids watch you all the time," Hoppy asks, "And what do you do while they're watching me?" Frequently, says Hoppy, the father sheepishly confesses, "I watch, too."

■ When Bob Hope was preparing for his Australian tour, a friend asked why he was making the long, wearying trip. "During the war," said Bob, "I did a USO tour in Australia. Our plane was caught in a storm and we had to dump a lot of stuff, including a case of Scotch. I'm going back to look for it!"

■ Just before a Masquerade Party telecast, emcee Peter Donald greeted panelist Dagmar, who's been dressing conservatively lately, with: "Long time no sequins!"

HOLLYWOOD Dan Jenkins reports:

It is now termed "most likely" that RKO's backlog of feature films will be released to TV after the first of the year. The RKO vaults include some top films: "Abe Lincoln in Illinois," "Cimarron," "The Informer," "Stage Door," "Citizen Kane," "Kitty Foyle" and INGRID BERGMAN and CARY GRANT in "Notorious."

JON HALL, with 52 Ramar of the Jungle films behind him, will soon start production on a new series, Knight of the South Seas, in which he'll play the skipper of a trading schooner . . . Desilu is about to sign the papers for a new Western anthology series based on LUKE SHORT stories. Show's "star" will be a Western town.

* * *

FRANK SINATRA is mulling a TV series, International House, in which he is cast as the proprietor of a European hotel. It's a whodunit. He'll make the series, with his own production company, when and if he can find the time. A sponsor already has an option on the show.

* * *

VIVIAN BLAINE is scheduled for a guest spot on the Saturday, Dec. 17, JIMMY DURANTE show . . . Sheena, Queen of the Jungle, will get the full CinemaScope-color treatment as a feature movie in February . . . GALE STORM's frantic--MAURICE EVANS wants her for "Devil's Disciple" Nov. 20, and she has a night club date!

* * *

THELMA RITTER, GENE LOCKHART and PHIL OBER head the cast of "The Late Christopher Bean" for an upcoming 20th Century-Fox Hour show . . . "Hanging Judge," written by RAYMOND MASSEY, will be a Climax! entry in December --with MASSEY starred . . . And BARRY SULLIVAN is interested in buying a Climax! play, "Thin Air," as a feature which he would produce and star in.

* * *

CBS will film 39 episodes of a new Foreign Legion series in Africa. Switch: star will be a woman. Problem: find a female star who wants any part of living there. . . BOB HOPE will film two of his TV shows in Britain, the first to be aired Christmas week.

* * *

KEN MURRAY and MARIE WILSON plan to do a four-week revival of "Blackouts" here late in December. Show originally ran seven years at the El Capitan theater, now an NBC-TV studio, and was MARIE's first big break . . . Look for JOSE FERRER to do another Producer's Showcase following the success of "Cyrano de Bergerac."

* * *

It hasn't been announced, but GEORGE JESSEL will emcee a huge testimonial dinner for JACKIE GLEASON at a New York hotel on Jan. 15, proceeds to go to the City of Hope . . . NBC has announced a schooling program designed to develop new comedy writers and comedians--an idea EDDIE CANTOR tried to give the network five years ago!
